Arm/Delivery Mechanics:	Stands a little open with feet closer together with glove at belt. Short windup and goes forward closed off toward 1st base side. Hides ball well behind him and throws a little across his body. Arm comes from a higher 3/4 slot and finishes center to maybe a little drift to 3B side.
Physical Description:	Average build, taller lanky lefty with smooth actions.					ML Comparison: _____

Category	Present	Future	Velocity	Comments
Fastball *	30	30	89-92	Deceptive FB, hides it well, gets on guys despite lower velo, higher ride heater w cut to it at times, can be hit hard if left over plate
FB Movement	60	60		Higher ride fastball with cut to it at times, plays well against both sides
Curve *	55	60	72-74	Pitch looks bigger/loopier than what numbers show due to velo, not a pitch he throws IZ but gets S&M at bottom of Z, HR off it
Slider *				Doesnt throw one
Cutter *	55	55	84-86	Didn't throw very many, plays well to LHH, doesn't act as bridge pitch, he can use it to get S&M
Change				Doesnt throw one
Command	60	60		Commanded FB and CB the best, IZ early with fastball for strike, swing over top w 2K w CB, left one CB up for a HR
Control	60	60		Only 1 BB, got ahead early and controlled the AB's, missed glove side occasionally
Baseball Instincts	50	50		Holds runners well, was around 1,3 TTP with a short leg kick and a quick move to 1B
Aggressiveness	60	60		Went right at guys, after HR went right back after the next batter, trusted his stuff and K'd 6 through 3IP

Summation: Hendrickson showed plus command and a good curve in a 3 inning start. Gets the FB on guys despite velo through deception and ride. Command/Control look legitimate. However, a 4.75 season ERA in AAA at his age 29 season suggest Hendrickson projects as a backend org arm. He profiles as a crafty veteran relief option.
